This autumn, Duffy casts an eye downwards – looking to the depths of the ocean to dream up a dramatic new coffee table, that introduces the majesty of the big blue to the interior… As well as servicing you with somewhere impressive to put your cup of tea.

LOOKING INTO THE ABYSS
Like all of Duffy’s designs, the Abyss Table is a conversation piece as much as a functional one. But while previous works play with gravity, this new design is concerned with depth, and creates a geological cross-section as mesmerising as the sea.

“AND WHEN YOU GAZE LONG INTO AN ABYSS, THE ABYSS ALSO GAZES INTO YOU.”
FRIEDRICH NIETZSCHE

A CONCEPT INSPIRED BY THE SPACE ODYSSEY SERIES.

This monolithic design takes its inspiration from The Sentinel, a book by Arthur C. Clarke that went on to be made into the film 2001: A Space Odyssey, directed by Stanley Kubrick. A glass table top seems to balance miraculously on top of toppling monoliths, which appear to be frozen in a permanent state of impending collapse.

This mind-boggling creation appears to the naked eye to be an impossible feat, but in reality it has its foundations in real physics.

AMAZE AND IMPRESS YOUR DINNER GUESTS, NOT WITH THE FOOD BUT WITH THE FURNITURE.

This table offers up the illusion of weightlessness, seeming to defy gravity and float above the floor with its runners draped over the sides.

You’ll just need Heston Blumenthal to complete the feast with a nitro-poached aperitif and snail porridge.
Designed to be the antithesis of the Shadow Chair, this is a design of pure structure and functionality, with a single continuous rod of metal creating the chair. Every piece of this chair is working as a part of the structure, including the seat and back.

The style and form of this design is completely dictated by the structure and physics of the chair, making it extremely strong with the very least amount of material possible.
This is an idea with legs- lots of them!
A large reversible chair that works either as a relaxing bedroom chair with two positions, or when used in pairs a chaise longue.

Designed by Christopher Duffy.

Handmade in London using traditional manufacturing and upholstering techniques.

Limited edition of 50

Research has shown that productivity at work and job satisfaction is strongly influenced by the working environment. Working in an attractive and well-designed office space stimulates creativity and contributes to health and well-being.

Duffy London has designed this moveable office pod, that not only looks amazing, but is very practical as well.

It can be used to create an intimate office meeting space, a quiet working area, or place for private phone calls. Move it around to follow the sun, or strategically position it for the best view.
Part of the Swing range, this variation on a theme takes the fun and frivolity of the Swing Table and brings it to the bedroom, using the original four-poster swing frame designed to support the bed.

Swing Hoops (supplied with the bed) can be fitted to the top frame to hang curtains or muslin around the bed, or other attachments; you don’t need to read 50 Shades of Gray to imagine the potential here…

The Millibed uses traditional upholstery and wood turning techniques in a modern style. The design is based on the movement of a millipede's legs, their segmentation, and pairs that give an odd number on each side.

“ILLUSION IS THE FIRST OF ALL PLEASURES.”
VOLTAIRE

Without a shadow of a doubt this chair will have you mesmerised by its gravity defying abilities.

No, it’s not a magic trick by Derren Brown, it’s a trick of the eye by Duffy London; the secret is that the shadow is actually part of the chair.

You’d be howling mad not to be amazed by the Wolf Within Shadow Chair, inspired by the Brothers Grimm fairy tale ‘Little Red Riding Hood’.

The shadow doubles as a faux wolf fur rug.

Is it a chair, or is it a tree?

Not everything is as always as it appears. The tree shadow is actually a wool felt rug.
